Bonn Security Aide Is Seized After Disclosures on Secrets

MUNICH, West Germany, March 18 (AP) — The federal police arrested a security official today who reportedly leaked secrets involving President Nixon and Chancellor Kurt Georg Kiesinger to a leftist news magazine.

A spokesman for the prosecutor's office in Karlsruhe said Hans Langemann, a top security official in the Bavarian Government and the chief of security at the 1972 Munich Olympics, was under police guard in Munich.

The spokesman would not say why Mr. Langemann had been arrested, but the office announced two weeks ago that it was checking accusations of a security leak.

Mr. Langemann was suspended from his post at his own request after an interview he gave to Frank Heigl was published in the March issue of the Hamburg-based magazine Konkret.

The magazine quoted Mr. Langemann as saying that the West German intelligence service had an agent infiltrate the circle close to President Nixon in 1969 in an effort to influence him in favor of West Germany. Mr. Langemann was also linked to the suppression of documents about the Nazi connections of Chancellor Kiesinger.
